

The Secondary Source

BEE-yond Greatness

ANNOUNCEMENTS:

May

- 🐉 19/20~25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee play @ Fenghua 7pm
- 🐉 30~Fine Arts Night

June

- 🐉 2~Secondary Awards
- 🐉 3~GRADUATION
- 🐉 4~PROM
- 🐉 10~Last Day Of School
- 🐉 13~Summer School Starts

By: D-Bex

Last night at seven in the Fenghua Theater, the talented actors and singers of QSI debuted The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee. The musical was a huge success and the theater was filled with suspense, laughter and enchanting music.

Mr. King walked out of the theater very satisfied after seeing his students' and his own hard work finally paying off. This wonderful performance could not have been done without the actors, crew and band working together. The amazing Florent Pronesti said, "I am so proud of this, I can't believe it will end tomorrow night." There were four guest appearances from teachers, who performed well, but alas, did not win the bee. This musical was sponsored by Demining Asia and True Children's Home, and because of the generous audience over 500 RMB was raised. This musical is a must-see experience, and it got a lot of good feedback from the audience. Come tonight to get a taste of these future stars' talents.

Last Chance to see the Amazing

25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee

Tonight at the Fenghua Theater 7pm

Shine on actors

QSI Aces the Competition

By: D-Bex

The first annual PRC Tennis Meet was held on May 7. QSI and SIS competed against each other. QSI had victories on both the girls and boys teams. Veronika Cvrkalova and Dakota

Singles champ Veronika

Orion were the champions in singles, while in the doubles Dakota Orion and Brian Hall were the victorious athletes. This event was a new and exciting experience which brought glory to QSI. Congrats to the athletes!

Hiya, Mr. Hyatt

By: Octopus

Like many adventure enthusiasts, Mr. Hyatt's keen interest in traveling guided him to China.

He always seeks to enjoy the excitement of life; for example, a young Hyatt confronted his fear of heights by bungee jumping from the Sharp angles may be his business, but we were able to capture him in a well-rounded moment.

200-foot tall King's Hill Bridge in Idaho. Also, he had kayaking talent that led him to a job as a rafting guide for ten years.

"The reason why I chose to come to China was because of the new cultural differences, and the desire of becoming a great teacher," says Mr. Hyatt, who became a Geometry and Consumer Math teacher in QSI. "The greatest part of being a teacher is the moment I see the students getting excited about learning."

When Mr. Hyatt was a high school student himself, he did a lot of extracurricular activities, like playing baseball, but still held down a part-time job in a grocery store.

Everybody notices he is quite tall and fit, but it's not from dieting. Mr. Hyatt says it's heredity that gives him a high metabolism and makes him the tallest one in most crowds.

He is actually a little shy about it, but he's also a bit of a romantic. "I guess the most romantic thing I did was give my mom's wedding ring to my wife – does that count?"

In the future, Mr. Hyatt will move on his journey to travel to other countries. "The next place I want to live in is South America." Cherish spending this time with him and remember, always show your passion for mathematics to make him stay longer in QSI!

Dr. Fuzzenstein's Advice Corner

Why is there only one microwave in school?

It all began in the time before time when the first 2 microwaves were born – both eager to rule over all school lunch. For years both microwaves sat there waiting for there one opportunity to strike. Until the time came for action. Then one brisk day, Operation Popcorn Overload commenced . After 2 hours of non-stop door slamming and beeping, an unanticipated pedestrian out of annoyance pushed one over the edge, ending the hotly contested war. But now there only remains one microwave... to rule them all. Sounds reasonable, right? –Dr. F

What is the best song ever?

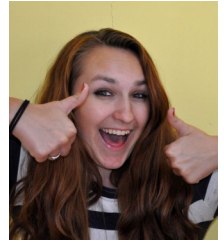

"Mail Time" by Blues Clues. Yeah, I said it. –Dr. F

HALLWAYHOLLA

Describe your Saturday night in one sentence.

"I don't remember."

Noelle Hilliker, Sec III

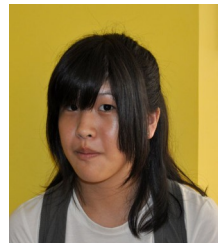

"A plethora of relaxing ventures."

Mr. Van Winkle

"Doing shots of nutritious chocolate milk."

Vivian Hsu, Sec II

"High on life."

Romzy Bryant, Sec III

QSI

SUCCESS FOR ALL

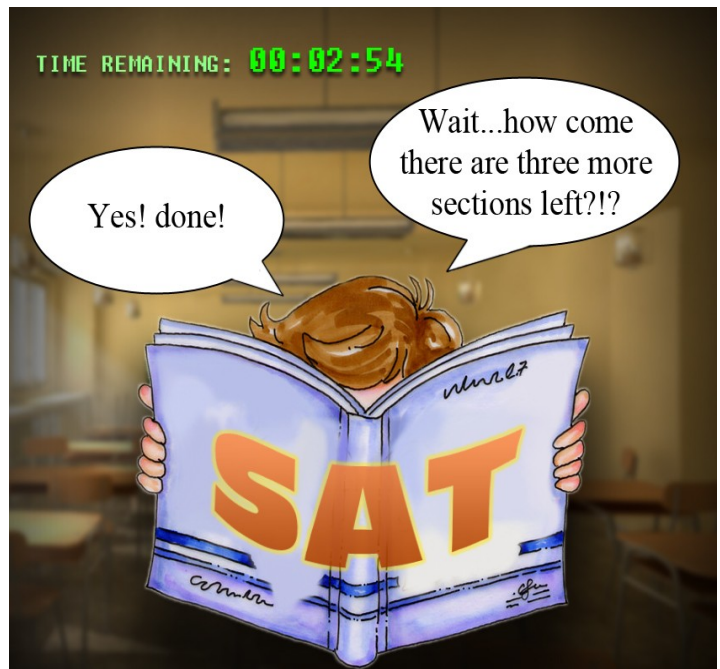

COMIC-CON

MODERNISM

By: Mysterio

Life is Great

By: Staedteler

JNN Channel

By: Starfish

SKOOLLRULZ

By: Octopus